

BIG CONVENTION HAS STARTED ITS LABORS AT THE COLISEUM

Senator Burrows Of Michigan, Sounds The Key Note Of The Great Gathering In His Speech As Temporary Chairman.

ROOSEVELT'S NAME WAS MENTIONED BUT ONCE

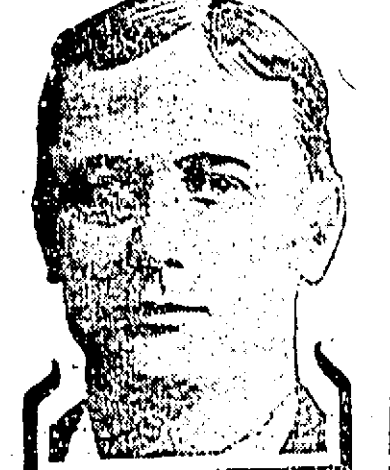

Platform Ready For Adoption Is Filled With Praise For The Republican Party And What It Has Accomplished And What It Has Promised For The Future.

Chicago, June 16.—The great republican national convention of 1908 has begun its deliberations.

Packed into the Coliseum are the nine hundred odd delegates, their alternates and thousands of prominent men and women from all parts of the civilized world.

For hours the hands have played patriotic airs as the great assemblage gathered. Ushers, assistant sergeants-at-arms and special police kept the crowds moving towards the seats they were assigned to. The delegations of states with favorite songs, bands and banners added color to the scene.

Promptly at noon National Chair-

HARRY S. NEW
Of Indianapolis, chairman of the republican party, New called the convention to order. He spoke briefly and introduced Bishop P. J. Muldoon of Chicago, who delivered the invocation.

Secretary, Elmer Dyer of the national committee then read the call of the convention.

Mr. New then arose again and presented Senator J. C. Burrows of Michigan as the temporary chairman. Chairman Burrows then spoke, outlining the prosperity of the country. His speech in brief was as follows:

Senator Burrows welcomed the delegates, told of the manner in which the government was organized, a president, vice-president, senate and house of representatives, the president for four years, the senate for six and the house of representatives for two.

Roosevelt's name, as mentioned in the choice of the convention four years ago, was received with applause, and it was the only time he was referred to by name.

The speaker then reviewed what had been accomplished by the nation in the past four years. "The increase in population of four millions, the increase in stocks and bonds, the increase in coal and gold, the accumulation of bank savings and the work of the different departments of the government showing improvement, was reviewed.

U. S. Senator Julius C. Burrows of Michigan, temporary chairman.
He to carry American goods under the American flag to all parts of the globe.

"The work of reorganizing the army, the trouble in Cuba, the work of the army and government in the Philippines and the navy, increased and enlarged.

Senator Burrows also touched upon the work of the department of justice in the recent anti-trust enforcement.

He quoted freely from the reports of the interstate commerce commission showing their work and labors in behalf of the government, paid a compliment to the railroad by saying that for the most part the management were trying to aid the government in its reforms.

"On the tariff he sounded the keynote of the whole platform which will probably be adopted. He stated decidedly that the republican party today stands for a revision of the tariff, keeping in mind the cardinal principles of protection of American industries and American labor. He promised that any such revisions that might come would, if under the republican party management, be just and adequate for the needs of the country.

"On the question of the recent panic last year, the speaker went into detail to explain the resources of the government and how serious trouble was averted. He told of the passage of a currency bill to meet any emergency that might arise before the commission appointed had formulated a complete new system of handling the finances and of the country and protecting public credit.

"The part the United States has played in the world's politics was touched upon. The intervention of the United States in the Moroccan troubles, the participation in the Pan-American conference at Rio Janeiro, the work of Mexico and the United States in bringing peace to the five states of Central America, the building of the Panama canal, the work of the United States Marines at San Domingo in keeping peace, the active participation of the United States delegates at the second peace conference, the settlement of all differences with Canada relative to border line, fisheries and other matters, were brought out.

In conclusion Senator Burrows said: "The questions between Japan and the United States, which caused so much public excitement in the year 1907, have been disposed of to the satisfaction of the people of both countries. The friendship and sympathy between the two governments have now been signified by the general treaty of arbitration concluded between them, by the invitation and acceptance of the invitation for the visit of our fleet at Tokyo, and by the response of the United States to the invitation of Japan to participate in the great exposition which is to be held at Tokyo in the year 1912, for which congress has authorized the expenditure of one million and a half dollars, the greatest sum ever appropriated for a foreign exposition.

"The friendly feelings among the people of China which grew out of the enforcement of the Chinese exclusion law and led to the boycott of American goods have disappeared, and American trade in China has been restored to its natural course. The United States has secured the assent of all the nations having possessions in the Orient to a united effort with China to put an end to the career of opium in the Orient, and an international conference under the leadership of the United States, has been agreed upon to meet at Shanghai on the 1st of next January for the purpose of devising and formulating an international agreement to prevent its production, sale, and use.

"Threatened tariff wars between the United States and Germany, and between the United States and France, have been averted by commercial agreements between the United States and each of those countries, made under the authority given to the president in the third section of the Dingley tariff act.

"But the crowning act in this drama was that in which the president himself took the initiative, halted the armies of Russia and Japan, bringing about an honorable, and, it is to be hoped, enduring peace.

"Yet nothing has added so much to his just fame as his persistence and resolute refusal to brook the unwritten law of the republic by accepting a nomination for a third term. By this act of self-sabotage he places his name and fame in the secure keeping of history by the side of that of the immortal Washington.

"With this splendid record of the last four years in the management of our domestic and foreign affairs, backed by the history of nearly half a century of republican policies, the public mind must rest in the conviction that the continued ascendancy of the republican party will best promote the interest of the people and advance the glory and stability of the republic."

When Burrows spoke of Roosevelt's nominating convention cheers which lasted two minutes were heard from all parts of the big hall. The same was true when he referred to Secretary Root's recommendations, the mere mention of Root's name causing a commotion.

Senator Burrows spoke for one hour and eight minutes, completing his speech at 1:42.

After Senator Burrows had completed his address the following officers for the convention's temporary organization were accepted:

General secretary—John R. Mulloy, Columbus, O.

Sergeant-at-arms—William F. Stone, Baltimore.

PROPOSED PLATFORM PRAISES ROOSEVELT

Chicago, Ill., June 16.—The platform of the republican party as it now stands says in part that the greatest era of American advancement is at present and that the republican party has reached its highest service under the leadership of Theodore Roosevelt, that with his administration an epoch in American history has been made.

In no other period since the national liberty was won under Washington, or saved under Lincoln has there been such mighty progress in these ideals of government which make for justice, equality and fair dealing among men to which the highest aspirations of the American people have found voice.

The most exalted servant has come to represent not a political sovereignty alone, but the best aims and the worthiest purposes of all his countrymen. An American manhood and womanhood have been lifted to a nobility and a sense of duty of the obligations of conscience and courage in public station and the highest standards of right and wrong in private life have become the cardinal principles of political faith. Capital and labor have been brought into closer relations of confidence and independence. Abuse of wealth, tyranny of power and all the evils of privileged favoritism have been put to scorn by the simple and manly virtues of justice and of fair play. The great accomplishments of Roosevelt have been, first and foremost, a brave and impartial enforcement of the law, a prosecution of the illegal trusts and monopolies, an exposure and punishment of the evil doers in public service, a more effective regulation of rates and service of the great transportation lines, and complete overthrow of professed, rebates and discrimination, arbitration of labor disputes, amelioration of conditions of wage earners everywhere and conservation of the natural resources of the country.

A forward step in the improvement of land and waterways, always in earnest support and defense of every wholesome safeguard which has made more secure the guarantee of life, liberty and prosperity.

These are achievements that will make for Roosevelt his place in history.

But more than all the great things he has done will be the inspiration to those who have yet greater things to do.

We declare our unflinching adherence to the policies thus inaugurated and pledge their continuance under the republican administration of government.

The platform declares unequivocally for a revision of tariff by a special session of congress, maintaining the true principle of protection by imposition of such duties as will equal the difference between the cost of production at home and abroad together with reasonable profits to American industries.

A free interchange of products between the United States and the Philippines is recommended.

The emergency measures adopted by the government during the recent financial disturbances were adequate but it was pointed out that a more elastic and adaptable currency system is needed which will meet the requirements of all classes of business, automatic in operation and minimizing the fluctuations of interest rates above all. It must be in harmony with that republican doctrine which insists that every dollar shall be based upon and redeemable in and as good as gold.

Continuing the platform says: Only the obstruction and filibustering democracy minority in the last house of congress prevented the enactment of a number of measures of great public benefit, the consideration of which can only be entrusted to another republican majority. But many wholesome and progressive laws were enacted. We especially commend the passage of the emergency currency bill and the appointment of a national monetary commission. It also commends the employers' and government liability laws, the measures for greater efficiency of the army and navy, the widow pension bill, the model child labor law for the district of Columbia, designed for emulation by the different states, the new statutes for the safety of railroad engineers and firemen, and many acts conserving public welfare.

Amendments to the Sherman Anti-Trust law are recommended as giving to the federal government greater supervision and control over, and securing greater publicity to the management of that class of interstate corporations having power and opportunity to effect monopolies and with the same time will not interfere with the operation of such associations among business men, farmers, and wage earners, and as a result will be a positive benefit to the public.

We approve the enactment of the railroad rate law and the vigorous enforcement by the present administration of the statutes against rebates and discrimination, as a result of which the advantage formerly possession by large shippers over small shippers have substantially disappeared.

Regarding writs of injunction the platform says: We declare for such amendments to the statutes of procedure in the federal courts with respect to the use of the writ of injunction as will on one hand prevent summary issue of such orders without proper consideration, and, on the other, will preserve undiminished power of the court to enforce their process, to the end that justice may be done at all times and to all parties.

IS DENIED AS TRUE ONE IN WASHINGTON

Washington, D. C., June 16.—Secretary Loch gave out the statement of the White House today as follows: "That which purports to be the so-called administration platform telegraphed from Chicago this morning is a more tentative draft prepared by one of the members of the resolution committee for submission to Taft with a view of securing his views upon certain points."

DIFFERENT MEN AT THE HEAD OF THE CONVENTION

OLD-TIMERS NOT AS PROMINENT AS IN FORMER YEARS AT PREVIOUS GATHERINGS.

YOUNG MEN IN CONTROL

Few of the War Horses of the Party Are Controlling the Destinies of the Republican Party Today.

BY WILLIAM ALLEN WHITE
[Special service to Janesville Gazette.]
[Copyright: 1908, by George Matthews Adams.]

Chicago, June 16.—"The first best bet today on vice president," said Abner Handy in the Pompeian room of the Annex, "is that it's up to New York. I've been around a good deal and talked with the old boys, and that's the only fact that there is in the convention today, and that will not last when the dew hits it."

"The only true thing," he added, as he waved proudly for the boy, and ordered a split apple, "the only true thing about this convention is that nothing is true."

At he sipped the fuzzy water and recalled his promise to Mrs. Handy before he left home, Abner added reflectively:

"The trouble with this convention is there is no politics in it. There are no politicians here. I've looked at this man Hittchcock—nothing but a card index—but he's all there is to him. And I've looked over Vorys—he won't do—he's perfectly frank. Haven't heard him called a liar since I've been here. No man gets far in politics until his enemies call him a liar."

"Say," added the Colonel as he leaned across the table on the table, "say—now honest—why did your paper put the Hon. off in front of my name? I like it. Tell them to put it on. I was around when the New York delegation held a meeting today, and say—they don't know any more politics than a rabbit. They couldn't see the difference between a convention is such a far-out that they have to debate three days to decide whether or they will take vice president. And what's more, imagine a convention where the most serious item of interest is the nominee for vice president. And now the New York delegation is going to have its palm read to find out whether it will take Hughes for vice president, or rally around Jim Sherman, the people's choice, or commit harlequin with Tim Woodcock."

Mr. Handy, who had been a time, and asked: "He's certainly hell—but what else could you expect of a convention where people all paid their railroad fares. You reformers will get this country swayed up in a sack so that there won't be any politics any more. They'll nominate the delegates by direct primaries, instruct them by direct primaries, vote by direct primaries on the chief plank of the platform, and where will this be? There's something in Abner Handy's view of it. New York delegate from the ninth Kansas district has been drifting around today looking for the old familiar face, and he finds they are not here. There aren't a dozen bronze buttons in all the throng. Young men with stiff straw hats, and boyish faces are dominating the crowd. "What can you expect?" asked the Colonel earnestly, as he drifted out of the Taft headquarters, of a gang like that? No whiskers, no no coming out of the convention room like a man from a dentist's office—with his teeth in his hands—a sadder and wiser man; nothing but idle speculation about the vice-presidency. The most thrilling piece of information that came to me today is that Fairbanks will take the vice-presidential nomination because he can't afford to cancel all the meal-tickets he has issued on his establishment at Washington. They say he will take it if it comes in the right way—not for the political honor but for the social advantages of the job.

"Great Scott—that's what you reformers have brought our politics to—and still you are prading primary laws and anti-trust laws."

The Colonel waved for the waiter and asked, and shook his head and said: "A promise is a promise—when your wife leaves the door keys—yes, another bottle of those liquid hair-pins."

Then he resumed his lamentations: "Yes, and look at Taft—up here with a statement that if you take Dolliver for vice-president the state will elect two democratic senators in Iowa and you—lowa—with Allison the party nominee and threatened with a democratic landslide if Dolliver is taken off the lid. That's reform for you, say—he continued sadly—"break the news gently to my old friend Clarkson of Iowa. When he hears that, he will spread the mantle of his couch on the floor and lie down and have a fit. That's what's the matter with the allies as you call them—but I call them the defenders of our American rights. The allies have lost their chips, lost their cards, lost their nerve and lost their overvaluing bristles. No railroad passes, no favors for their friends—no tickets to the convention—nothing, but leaves, the spirit grieves. I saw some forlorn fellows solemnly yawning it down Michigan avenue this morning. They had a band and were in a procession. Was it a funeral? It was not. Was it the doomed man walking to the gallows with a firm step after eating a hearty breakfast of bacon and eggs. Not at all! Was it a delegation of flood sufferers or a chain gang? No, but it looked like the melancholy ward of an asylum out for a morning's airing, and it was the Knox marching club. They are here. The band is here. They have to do something—so they fill through the hotels like lost spirits, and recall the days when there was politics in this man's town, and a railroad attorney with a book of transportation was a bigger man than old Grant. And that's what your reform has done. Put a lot of willow in some suits—like ninety-eight marked down from fourteen—into control of the destinies of our great republic.

"What has become of our common heritage?" exclaimed Mr. Handy, waving his glass wildly. "Where is our manifest destiny? Who's gone and stolen the prize potter and the alarm vial?" Is it in the platform? No, you reformers are making terms with (Gompers, and Taff's liberal views, they call them, are going to prevail over the conservative views of our people's leaders, our grand old man, freedom's champion, the defender of the faith of the fathers, the man who—the man who—the man who, reiterated Mr. Handy; "the man who—refer to him, J. O. Cannon of Danville, Ill. Where's your key-note speech in this convention? I'll tell you its fastened in Burrows' throat. Who is going to sound a clarion note here today? There will be no clarion note.

"The name of the gallant Blahno will not be heard in the hall. The party that saved the country, that broke the shackles on four million slaves, the party that preserved the union, is represented here by the allies, and they are tossed around like a lot of last year's alfalfa. They came here asking for the presidency; they were willing to compromise on the vice-presidency and naming the name of Jim Sherman. Then when that was spurned they sought vainly to beat Gompers to the platform, and this bright and beautiful summer day they are out trying to get gallery seats for their friends."

"It reminds me of the time Colonel Anderson, J. H. Anderson of our town started out to be minister to England under Cleveland's first administration. He found that John Gompers, and compromised by applying for assistant secretary of state, failing to get it, asked for United States marshal, failing in that he asked for the postoffice at home, and then, failing in that, straightened himself up and said: 'Thank heaven, we have a democratic governor in Kansas, and he will not turn me down! He came home three months later with a pair of Governor Gillett's old trousers, and to that end has your reform brought those who for forty years have been fighting the party's battles. Of course, I'm for Roosevelt alright—but say, if he could run horses and let Jim Cannon take the reins—what a new light of hope would burst over the paragon of the coming campaign."

Mr. Handy rose grandly and said: "Reform—reform—what crimes are committed in this name!"

DEAN M'GINNITY IN SERIOUS CONDITION

Friends of Local Churchman Are Very Much Alarmed Over His Condition.

Friends of the Rev. Dean E. M. McGinnity are very much alarmed over his condition. He has been very low for the past few days and while there has been little or no change for the worse neither has there been any for the better. Overexertion brought on a renewal of the heart trouble which attacked him some time ago.

OBITUARY.

John Guy Ross
The funeral services of the late John Guy Ross were held this afternoon at two-thirty o'clock from the home at 206 South Division street. The Rev. R. C. Donahoe officiated and the pallbearers were John Russell, A. G. Russell, Ernest W. Herbert, Ross, Roy Hanson, and Herbert Hanson. Many beautiful flowers adorned the casket. The interment was in the Oak Hill cemetery.

Frederick Buchholz.
Frederick Buchholz who resides on Hollet Ave., died this morning at the Mercy Hospital. The remains were taken to the home of his son-in-law, John Hitesman, on Hollet Ave., and the funeral will be held from there Thursday morning at ten o'clock. The Rev. W. P. Christy will officiate and the remains will be taken to Hollet for interment.

Infant Child.
The infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Greenwalt of the town of Magnolia about two miles north of Footville, died very suddenly this morning. When the mother got up this morning she left the child asleep. Later an older sister noticed that the little one seemed to be in pain. Dr. Keithley of Oxfordville was the nearest physician and by the time he had reached the Greenwalt home the child was dead. A convulsion caused by stomach trouble was the cause.

CEMENT WALK SAVING.

W. J. Hilt Offers Public Best Walk at City Center Price, 8c Per Foot.

The contract for the city cement work was let to me in competitive bid at 8c per square foot and in accordance with the city specifications all work is fully guaranteed. I have decided to give the public generally the advantage of this city rate and hereafter will accept your cement sidewalk work at the same price—8c per sq. foot. This will mean a big saving to the public and is for strictly guaranteed work and material. My labor saving mixers and up to date cement work tools makes it possible for me to handle cement work in the very best manner at a lower price.

Estimates on cement work of any kind furnished. W. J. HILT.

DENIED MOTION FOR A NEW TRIAL TODAY

Judge Grimm Refuses to Grant a New Trial in the Case of Boelke vs. Lane.

After hearing the arguments of the attorneys of both parties Judge Grimm this morning denied a motion for a new trial in the case of Boelke vs. Lane. This was an action brought by the plaintiff against the defendant for damages caused by the defendant running into the plaintiff's team with an automobile.

Admitted Citizens.
Judge Grimm yesterday afternoon admitted six new citizens. They were Herman Hubbs of Edgerton, Thomas Joyce of Janesville, William Leuz of Janesville, August Koester of Janesville, Robert McDowell of Janesville, and Thomas McDowell of Janesville. Three named Germany as their birthplace and three were of Irish birth. John Wirth's petition for his second papers was also called but he was not present.

Judge Grimm returned to Jefferson last evening.

ENJOYED A TRIP UP RIVER LAST NIGHT

Members of the Y. P. S. C. E. of the Congregational Church Have Boat Ride Monday Night.

Last night about thirty-five couples from the Y. P. S. C. E. of the Congregational church enjoyed a boat ride on the City Belle up the river a short distance beyond Idlewild. The affair had been intended as a moonlight ride but the moon failed to make its appearance until the boat had almost reached the dock on the return trip. An orchestra of three pieces furnished the music and Japanese lanterns suspended from the top of the boat furnished the illumination. Songs and jests made the evening pass very quickly for all those present.

HULL AND PROUTY IN A TIE.

Iowa Contest Probably Must Be Settled in the Courts.

Des Moines, Ia., June 16.—The Hull-Prouty contest in the Seventh Iowa district still hangs in the balance, with the prospects that the ultimate decision will have to be made in the courts. As a result of the recount by the board of county supervisors of the ballots cast in the recent primary election, the vote stands at a tie for the two candidates.

CABIN CAN BE BOUGHT CHEAP.

Poor Place of Abode, However, for Nervous People.

A woman librarian tells this tale: "Last summer I was down in the mountains of Virginia at one of the many 'sweet springs,' once a famous watering-place for 'de quality.' One morning in my ramble I found a most delightful log cabin cozily tucked away on a ledge with a view that I knew would inspire me to grander, better things. There was a big living room, a kitchen, and two bedrooms, a porch hung in wild, sweet honeysuckle, a well and even an old-fashioned fireplace, that I immediately saw with blazing logs when I should hold house parties in my mountain home. I inquired and found I could buy the cabin for $400 and was determined to own it before the sun set behind the big blue western mountains. I went back to prow around it once more.

"As I came around to the back door I saw a little mountain girl in blue gingham dress and pink sunbonnet sitting there. 'Howdy,' she drawled in the mountaineer accent. 'How do you do, little girl, do you live near here?' 'Yessum, we-all live up in this air house up yendah. Do you-all live here?' 'No, I said, 'but it is a pretty place, is it not?' 'Yessum, we-all did live here, once.' 'Oh! you did, and what made you move?' I asked, fully. 'Copperheads,' she said, looking interested. 'There's a nest of copperheads under the stone in that air-ha-place, and the faster you-all kills 'em the faster they-all comes. I'll bet paw killed 400 snakes that wriggled up outer that door.'

"The 'For Sale Cheap' sign still hangs on my little mountain cabin."

HOW LONG DO BANK NOTES LIVE?

Generally But a Short Time—Where Institution Makes Profit.

What is the life of a Bank of England note? According to an official of the bank, the average life or period that a note was out was, for a 25 note, 62 days; a 10 note, 58 days; 220 to 2100 note, 30 days; 2200 to 2500 note, 11 days; 21,000 note, 55 days.

A little consideration will be sufficient to convince any one that the authorities of the bank must reap a very handsome sum year by year from their note issue. Think, however, what thousands of notes are destroyed—say, by fire or shipwreck—and consequently are never presented for payment. A gentleman who has recently retired from an important post in the city has in his possession a genuine 21 Bank of England note bearing date February 9, 1758. Had this money been invested on the usual deposit rates the bank would have credited some one's account since then with an amount well over £2,000.—London, T. H. Uta.

GENERAL GOSSIP ON TOBACCO SITUATION

What Is Doing Done in the Leaf Business Throughout the City.

Farmers around the country have most of their tobacco planted and the plants are reported as coming along nicely. The eastern market for the old goods is improving, reports A. N. Jones, but the factories are buying only as they need. Business at the Jones warehouse is rather quiet.

L. B. Carlo & Son are sending out small shipments of tobacco, mostly of the crops of 1905 and 1906. They have about 75 hands working on the 1907 tobacco.

At the McGinnis warehouse a carload was being prepared for shipping to New York yesterday. At the Callahan, Ryan, and Young & Newman warehouses things were quiet. At Callahan and Ryan's work was being done on the 97 pack.

P. S. Haines reports sales of 780 cases last week of tobacco of the crops of 1906 and 1907, bought of Jack Compton, 7 acres at 84c, 14c and 24c; of Frank Hudson, 22 acres in land at 7c, 4c and 2c.

At M. F. Green's warehouses 120 people are employed sorting and packing and are turning out about two carloads a day. Shipments are small however.

Thirty-five are kept busy at the Donahoe warehouse on Cherry street sorting and packing. They are shipping out some tobacco, but only in small quantities, and are still buying.

At the warehouses it was said the American Tobacco company have been trying to buy up the crop of 1907. Some of the dealers seemed to think that it was only the crop from the farmers that they were trying to secure, but others said that they were buying the dealers' pickings where they could. Mr. Haines and Mr. Green both said that the American Tobacco company were buying all of the crop that they possibly could. Those of the dealers who spoke of it said that they did not think that any direct deals would be done to the great harm, but that the manufacturers would be the ones that would suffer. P. S. Haines, Mace Bros, and also Barnard & Libby of Evansville have sold their 97 packings to the American Tobacco company.

The Gary Tobacco company of Edgerton are shipping tobacco purchased of local dealers.

The W. C. T. U. will meet Wednesday at 4 P. M. in the parlors of the Presbyterian church. An interesting program will be given and every one is cordially invited.

BISHOP PETER MULDOON

O Lord, our heavenly Father, the high and mighty ruler of the universe, who dost from thy throne behold all the dwellers upon earth; most favorably we beseech Thee with Thy heart to behold and bless Thy servant the President of the United States and all others in Authority; and so replenish them with the grace of Thy Holy Spirit, that they may always incline to Thy will, and walk in Thy will. Endue them plentifully with heavenly gifts; grant them in health and prosperity long to live, and finally after this life to obtain Everlasting joy and felicity. And O most gracious God, we humbly beseech Thee, in for the people of the United States in general, and especially for this National Republican Convention here assembled; that Thou wouldst be pleased to direct and prosper all their consultations to the advancement of Thy glory, the safety, honor and welfare of Thy people. Take always all hatred and prejudice and whatsoever else may hinder them from perfect union and concord, that all things may be so ordered and settled by their endeavors upon the best and surest foundations, that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety, may be established among us for all generations. These and all other necessities for the members of this Convention and for the Nation at large, we humbly beg in the name and mediation of Jesus Christ, our most blessed Lord and Savior, who has taught us when we say:

Our Father, who art in heaven, hallowed be Thy name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us, and lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil; for Thine is the Kingdom, and the Power, and the Glory, forever and ever. Amen.

The gavel made from an oak log of old Port Dearborn used to open the republican national convention. For the manufacture of the gavel and its box two feet were cut of the end of an eight-foot log in the collection of the city's department of municipal history. The inside of the box cover is left in its rough hewn condition, showing the deep brown cuts. The mallet is about five feet long and around the head is a silver band, bearing an American flag in colored enamel and the following inscription:

"Presented to Harry S. New, chairman of the republican national committee, for use at the national convention held in Chicago June 16, 1908, by Chicago committee of arrangements."
FRED W. UPHAM, "Chairman."

A silver plate on the box cover bears this legend:
"Made of hand-hewn oak log from a blackhouse of old Port Dearborn the first outpost of civilization under the United States government in Chicago or vicinity in the old Northwest, 1802—burned by the Indians and rebuilt 1816. The log from which this gavel and box are made is in the collection of the department of municipal history and museum, Chicago City Hall, June, 1908."

Entitled to the Best.
Tipping is admitted to be a bad habit, but it is firmly established. A young fellow who took his best girl to supper felt that he must conform to custom, and handed out his coin with liberality, so that no one in the restaurant was overlooked. After they had been swung through the revolving door she said:

"Did you give that man at the door anything?"

"No. Why?"

"He ought to have had the most. He let us out."

Heavily Armed.
"Would you like to see the latest 'bayonet' collar?" asked the polite clerk in the big department store.

"No, sonny," drawled Uncle Hezekiah, as he mopped his brow with a red handkerchief. "I've just bought a pair of gunmetal shoes and cannonball suspenders, and I reckon they are warlike enough for an old man like me."

Aware of That.
"Fardon me," began the new acquaintance, "but are you the Mr. Cadley Nuttall, who wrote that magazine article last month for us?"

"Yes," interrupted Nuttall, "but, of course, you'll understand that I don't make a business of that sort of thing."

"Of course, I know that. I read the article."

"Children and Old Women in Peril."

Interesting

Some "Queen Quality" Shoe statistics are interesting. It's the largest factory of women's shoes in the world. Over 3600 hands are employed. The pay roll is $12 a minute. The output is about one "Queen Quality" Shoe every second, or a retail cash business of $100 a minute. The saving per year to the 3,000,000 women who wear "Queen Quality" Shoes is incalculable. Try them once.

THE REPUBLICAN CONVENTION

The republican national convention is now in full swing, and the question of leadership, for the next four years, will soon be determined, for the nominee of the convention will be the next president beyond reasonable doubt.

While the pre-convention campaign has been unimpaired, and the friends of various candidates have worked enthusiastically for their success, no scars remain, and when Taft is nominated, the party will be in line for effective work, for the fact is recognized that loyalty means more than individual success.

The speech of Senator Burrows, temporary chairman, which appears in part in another part of the paper, expresses the keynote of the campaign, and will be endorsed by the party regardless of defeated candidates.

The nomination of Taft will be heralded by the business world as an omen of prosperity, for he combines with energy, conservatism and hard common sense. He has thus far been overshadowed by the president, but it will soon be discovered that the man Taft is able to stand on his own feet, and his administration will be noted for fairness and justice, free from radicalism and impulsive action.

The republican convention is a notable gathering for it includes the great leaders of the party, from every state in the union. Many of these men are politicians, and a liberal sprinkling are statesmen. They are the men selected by the rank and file to represent the party, and while open to criticism, as are all public men, it is well to remember that back of them is the ability which placed them at the front, and as a rule they are faithful servants. This convention will be a ratification meeting, for Taft was as good as nominated before it convened.

GEORGIA CONVALESCENT

"William Allen White's old question, 'What's the matter with Kansas?' is now being freely asked about Georgia," says the Milwaukee Sentinel. "The diagnosis of Georgia's case, now really one of convalescence, seems easy enough."

"Georgia has been undergoing a little hard times treatment for radicalism. A year or so ago the state had an acute attack of that complaint, elected Hoke Smith for governor on a platform of shooting things up, and went in for railroad building, confiscatory rates and a general 'shoot dance' at the expense of stockholders and employees."

"Of course Georgia, having called the tune, had to pay the piper. One recalls the Buffalo merchant's reply to the English correspondent in 1896 who asked him what would happen if Bryan were elected: 'Why, business would go to hell, sir; that is what would happen.'"

"Something like that has been happening or threatening in Georgia since the state went in for Hoke Smithing things. But Georgia knows when it has had enough. At the recent primaries Smith was defeated for governor by Brown, the railroad commissioner he turned out of office, and pronounced for a liberal railway policy and a general return to sanity."

"Business depression brought reform radicalism up with a round turn in Georgia. Business and wages could stand no more of it, and capital was growing shy of the state. Other states with an overstock of blather-skiing politicians may profit by its example."

The Sentinel is right concerning conditions in Georgia, and its suggestion regarding other states is also to the point. Radicalism and fanatical legislation has been in full swing for the past four years, and with Wisconsin as a slogan, the western and southern states have vied with each other in a race for this sort of supremacy.

The discovery has finally been made that "representative government," while a good title to conjure with, is a snare and delusion, for it represents in reform parlance, nothing but the ambition of a handful of reformers.

The railroads and great industries are victims today of this much heralded representative government, and the people are permitted to admire its beauties at close range.

There are many three-spin theories that fade out in the wash, and this is one of them. The state of Georgia is getting what is coming to it, and the people have come to their senses none too soon. Iowa awoke just in time, and there are symptoms of a general arousing, for which the nation should be thankful.

Senator Stephenson's candidate, Publisher of Milwaukee, declines, and Babcock's place on the republican national committee will doubtless be filled by Rogers of Madison, law partner of the senior senator.

Rogers of Madison will succeed Babcock on the national republican committee, while Senator Stephenson will be a silent spectator, still wondering just what he secured for his $400,000 investment.

The republicans of Iowa can hardly afford to sacrifice Dolliver for Cummins, and if the party is wise it will go east for a vice-presidential candidate.

Congressman Cooper will represent the minority on the committee on resolutions at the national convention, and will stand for Wisconsin reform.

Wisconsin has some congressmen who should transfer their allegiance to the democratic party, whose sympathies are already enlisted.

Carrie Nation is again on earth, and Chicago saloons are her target. Carrie is nothing if not persistent.

PERSECUTING A PREACHER.

Before he entered the ministry the Rev. T. A. Miller of a certain village in South Dakota was a house painter and paper hanger.

Because his salary was insufficient to support his family he has been compelled to work at his trade during the week.

It is noted that his congregation made no special objection to Mr. Miller's week day industry. It hurt their pride somewhat, but it eased the "financial burden" of the church. And you know—

"The jingling of the guinea helps the hurt that honor feels."

One day, however, the preacher began the job of painting and decorating a saloon.

Horror!

The members of the official board met in plenary assembly and decreed that the pastor must resign or be "fired." They ordered him out of the parsonage. They sued him for $25, alleged back rental for the use of the parsonage. Afterward they withdrew the suit and paid the costs on agreement that the preacher should vacate in eight days.

It does not appear that the hard-working pastor drank liquor in the saloon. No one accused him of that. It further appears that the saloon was closed for business when he did the work.

And every one agreed the preacher did a good job.

But these modern Pharisees, so concerned as to the "mud, muck and mud" and indifferent to the "weightier things of the law," these suppliant pharisees, would rob the stalled ox of his feed. Of course the laborer was worthy of his hire, and the reverend workman had earned it by the sweat of his face. But painting a saloon—they drew the line there!

That congregation ought to have been proud of their plucky preacher. Not every gospel minister would be willing to make so great a sacrifice in order to preach his message on the Lord's day.

How the gentle Christ would have scorned the unkind souls of those synagogue officials!

He who saw at a glance the meanness in men's hearts would have told them, as he told the pharisees, hypocrites of twenty centuries ago, that they were white-washed sepulchres—clean on the outside, but inwardly filled with dead men's bones.

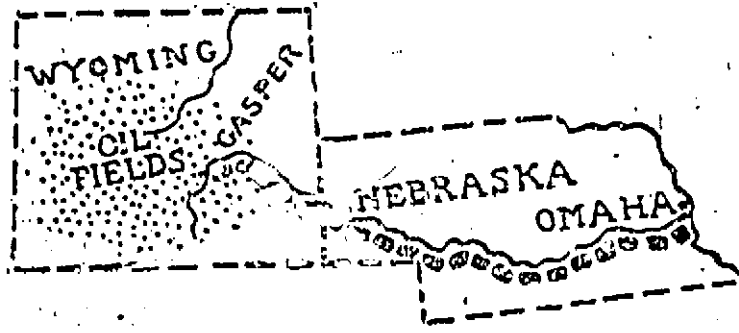

And in the judgment—

Who would not rather be in the shoes of the poor, patient preacher than in those of his pliant persecutors?

Persistence.

PIPE LINE TO CARRY OIL FROM WYOMING TO OMAHA

Omaha, Neb.—Cheap fuel for Omaha, and this city the distributing point for the products of the vast oil fields of Wyoming, is the problem being worked out by a syndicate of English capitalists who were in Omaha recently and left for Lander, Wyo., where the syndicate has secured options on the blumblumblum oil fields in the Salt creek and Powder river territory.

Fifty miles north of Casper, Wyo., and the fuel oil fields nine miles south of Lander, Wyo. They have bought the land formerly owned by the late Frank Murphy of Omaha, as well as that of the other large landholders in that vicinity.

Experts of international prominence have examined the oil fields and pronounced the oil of the Salt creek and Powder river field of the highest grade of paraffine base oil. Such experts as Sir H. Rodwood of England and the European expert, Dr. Pora, have pronounced the Wyoming fields as the biggest finds of oil in the United States. From the glowing reports of the experts, the English capitalists have come to the conclusion that oil can be had, in paying quantities, and they propose to run a pipe line into Omaha, some 700 odd miles in length. Omaha is the natural outlet of this oil country, and as it is a water grade from the fields into Omaha, there are no engineering difficulties in the way of the construction of such a line, and making Omaha the distributing point for the oil and its by-products.

The fuel oil fields south of Lander have a proven area of six miles in length and five-eighths mile in width, and of the sixteen wells there, twelve have been in operation over eighteen years without any indications of the cessation of the flow. In fact, one of these old wells throws a stream from fifty to eighty feet on the perpendicular. Owing to this great pressure, oil accumulates at the rate of from 300,000 to 600,000 barrels a year and settles in ponds. This seep oil, owing to there being no adequate transportation facilities, has heretofore been burned to prevent it overflowing surrounding agricultural fields.

The capital behind this enterprise is mostly English, the balance of the interests are in The Hague and Amsterdam. It is contemplated that if after investigation the party finds that the reports of the experts are not exaggerated, the first oil well to be marketed in Omaha will be of many days. This is to be done by the co-operation of the Northwestern railroad, the officials of which have recently been over the field and indicated a hearty inclination to help the project.

A pipe line will be built to Lander, and Wyoming oil of the new syndicate will be shipped to the distributing center during the erection of the pipe line. Besides the object of cheaper fuel, the significance of this pipe line to Omaha will be in the erection of a huge oil refinery here for the refining of the oil and the manufacture of its by-products. Colonel E. J. Harrison, power remained in Omaha to establish a market and learn the facilities for the distribution of the oil.

LATEST PICTURE OF THE TWO MEN WHO CONTROL ELECTIONS IN NEW YORK CITY—LITTLE TIM SULLIVAN SITTING, AND BIG TIM STANDING.

New York.—Tammany today is stronger than ever. No political organization was ever so thoroughly perfected as is this machine. Big Tim is the popular name of the Hon. Timothy Sullivan, while Little Tim is officially styled the Hon. Timothy P. Sullivan. These two men can throw the vote of New York city in almost any direction they please. "Big Tim" was the only man who ever met Richard Croker on something like equal terms. He served him faithfully but never groveled to him, as did most of the local politicians. He is powerfully built and very active in every phase of New York life. When Mayor McClellan ran for mayor it was Big Tim and Little Tim who assisted him. When he aspired to the governorship, after the McClellan forces had crumbled, after his employment this is recharged at once, together with the name of his new employer. If a man moves or a foreman is naturalized, this is at so noted, and should a report fall to reach Tammany hall within ten days covering the full details, the man in charge is subject to discipline. Tammany hall pays liberally for this work and expects results. Charles Murphy, as head of Tammany, of course directs its policy, but "Big Tim" and "Little Tim" Sullivan are the men who get the results.

Any one not familiar with the work of the Tammany machine can scarcely appreciate the detail of its mechanism. There is one man assigned to every ten men in the city of New York, not only for the way these men vote, but for every move they make, so that Tammany leaders can put their fingers at a moment's notice on any voter in New York city. Should a man split with the Sullivan forces, it was Big Tim and Little Tim who prevented his nomination.

THE BINDER TWINE THAT WORKS RIGHT UNDER ALL CONDITIONS IS ESSENTIAL TO SUCCESSFUL BINDING.

The time of harvest is naturally confined to a few days, and delays are always a source of loss. Twine that kinks and breaks is dear at any price. It is a continued annoyance to the driver of the binder, and the rebound bundles scattered over the field delay shocking. Poor twine frequently causes delays of sufficient length for heavy rains to destroy more than enough grain to pay for the twine used in the entire harvest season. If the twine is inferior the bundles will be broken open when pitched to the wagon and stuck, consequently the man doing the stacking has great difficulty in building stacks that will shed water. One of the greatest essentials in good twine is that it be uniform in size and strength. If it has these two characteristics and is properly wound it will not kink and clog the knottor or pull thin and break. Users of McCormick twine never experience any of these difficulties, because the manufacturers have had many years of experience in spinning binder twine; they also use the best raw materials and the most up-to-date machinery, much of which has been designed by experts for special use in the McCormick twine mills. This modern machinery, supplemented by a most rigid system of inspection during the process of manufacture and the use of the best materials, is the means of producing the McCormick binder twine which is so favorably known and widely used on account of its full strength and full length, excellent quality and evenness of strand.

I sell this binder twine at the prices which you would pay for inferior grades. Use this old reliable kind and be sure of everything going smoothly.

Man in Ossining, N. Y., Offends Grand Army Post Commander.

Ossining, N. Y., June 16.—A Confederate flag flying from the printing office of William J. Physloc on Main street was hauled down Monday by Commander Sumner A. Smith of Mott's Post of the Grand Army. Physloc was cited to appear before the post and explain his action in hoisting the flag so that it overlapped the American flag, also flying from poles on the roof.

Ossining is in gala attire because of a convention of Stromen and Physloc decorated his building in honor of the celebration. He declared that the flag belonged to his father, a Virginian, who fought under it during the civil war, and that he hoisted it intending no disrespect to the Stars and Stripes, but to add to the beauty of the decorations. Physloc, it is said, was a member of the Rough Riders' regiment during the war with Spain.

UTTERS CORNERS.

Utters Corners, June 10.—There will be given an entertainment at the church Friday night, June 10th, under the auspices of the L. A. S. There will be vocal and instrumental music and good speaking in abundance, and tea and cream will be served at the close of the entertainment.

Ethel Gerwill and Ella Bang spent a portion of last week with friends at Helenville.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hadley and children took a three days' vacation last week and visited Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Kyle at their home in Helron, Ill. Mrs. Kyle and Mrs. Hadley are sisters.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Krenger of Richmond called on their daughter, Mrs. Geo. H. Roe, Friday. They were on their way to Whitewater where Mr. K. took the train for Nebraska to look at the country with a view to locating there if it suits him.

Mrs. Geo. H. Roe and daughter Margaret will go to Chicago June 25th to be at the wedding of a relative which will occur on the 24th. Margaret will be ribbon bearer. They will be accompanied by Mrs. Roe's mother, Mrs. Krenger of Richmond. They expect to return home the 25th.

Miss Blanche Kildow was the overnight guest of Miss Nettie Farnsworth Tuesday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Shields spent Sunday afternoon with O. Bevens and family at Johnstown. A number from this vicinity attended the funeral of the late William Pollard at the chapel at the Hillside cemetery in Whitewater.

Geo. H. Roe and family were pleasantly entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Burg Sunday.

John Deuch visited his parents at Rome Tuesday of last week. On his return he was accompanied by his brother who will remain as an assistant at the creamery.

To Banish the Goat.

Malta's celebrated goats are likely soon to be only a memory on the historic island, for it has been found that banishing goats' milk means an end to the ravages of Malta fever. The commission appointed in 1907 to trace the origin of the fever in the garrisons and crowds of warships made the discovery that the germ of the fever was present in the milk of the goat. Wherever the use of this milk has been prohibited the fever has disappeared.

CAMP TORN UP BY MERCY STORM

THREE THOUSAND TENTS AT PINE PLAINS BLOWN DOWN.

PAPER MONEY SCATTERED

Cash Swaps Away the Paymaster's Fund—Mimic Attack on New York City is Planned.

New York, June 10.—Pine Plains, the concentration camp of the federal soldiers and national guardsmen, was torn up from one end to the other of its seven miles of territory Sunday by the most severe wind and rain storm that has visited that section for years.

Three thousand tents were blown down, mess shelters were leveled and more than 100 horses stampeded and escaped from their corrals.

It was the soldiers' first drill of the field maneuvers, which take place this week under Gen. Fred D. Grant, commander of the department of the east, but it was not of the kind anticipated.

Money Scattered by the Gale.

Paymaster John S. Mallory was paying off the Twelfth United States Infantry when the storm descended. He had arranged the money in heaps of bills, preparatory to distributing them among the men. Maj. Mallory and his assistants made an attempt to get the money back into the strongboxes, but they were unsuccessful, and in a moment the air was full of currency.

Bills of many denominations were found scattered over a territory of a mile or more, and probably the greater part of the money will be recovered.

Mimic Attack on New York.

The troops will be kept busy with day and night maneuvers, solving various problems of defense and attack, outpost duty and other activities of troops in the field at war.

While the regulars, a brigade of Massachusetts militia and a regiment and several troops of a battery of the New York National Guard are struggling with the rules and rigors of mimic war at Pine Plains, ships chased as foreign fleets will endeavor to capture New York city, which will be defended by regulars and New York National Guard regiments of the coast artillery.

Under the direction of the regulars the state troops will essay the task of operating the big defense guns in the four forts guarding the harbor approaches.

LOUISIANA REMAINS "WET."

House Postpones Consideration of State Prohibition Bill.

Baton Rouge, La., June 10.—Louisiana will not become a prohibition state during the term of the present assembly. This was decided Monday night by the house of representatives, which body by a vote of 55 to 47 indefinitely postponed consideration of the Dossman bill providing for a referendum on state-wide prohibition.

Thousands See Elevator Burn.

Chicago, June 10.—The old City elevator, a landmark at Thirteenth street and the river, was destroyed by fire Monday night. The blaze was one of the most spectacular ever seen in Chicago. It is estimated that more than 200,000 persons, many of them visitors to the convention, were attracted to the scene by the glare. The building was empty, having been acquired some time ago by the sanitary district for the purpose of razing it to widen the river at that point.

Town Treasurer Hangs Himself.

Copemish, Mich., June 10.—The body of Frank Bunting, 35 years old, treasurer of Chion township, was found Monday hanging to a tree. A coroner's jury decided that he committed suicide. Bunting's funds are said to be intact.

MOTOR CAR RUNS INTO RIVER.

Four Persons Drowned in Accident at New York.

New York, June 10.—Four persons were drowned Monday night when an automobile carrying a pleasure party of six became unmanageable, shot at wild speed down West Fifty-sixth street and bounded from an open pier into the North river. The machine turned over in its plunge from the pier, holding the four victims fast in their seats. The dead are: Adeline Heydon, aged 19 years; Mrs. Rose Coleman, aged 23 years; John Coleman, aged 27 years; and Virginia Knight, aged eight years.

John Bauer, the chauffeur, was carried into the river with the machine but managed to free himself and swim to safety. John Nolan, one of the party, jumped from the runaway machine as it neared the end of the dock. Bauer was taken into custody by the police.

Yaquis Refuse to Surrender.

Noakes, Ariz., June 10.—As predicted in a dispatch from Hermosillo last Friday, the large body of Yaqui Indians assembled there for several weeks to discuss terms of surrender to the Mexican government refused Monday to give up their arms, as demanded, and negotiations for a peaceful settlement are broken off at least temporarily.

Beans are $2.63

Every bushel of beans used in Van Camp's now costs us $2.63. Still other beans sell down to 30 cents. Now is the time to be careful. If you want the best beans, be sure to insist on Van Camp's.

The demand for Van Camp's has grown almost too large to be profitable.

You all want the best beans now, and such beans have grown scarce. We must pay extravagant prices to get them.

But we are getting them still, and we shall get them—else we will stop baking beans.

For Van Camp's will always be those white, plump, full-grown beans—selected Michigan beans. And, no matter what they cost us, we shall not raise the price to you.

They told us—not long ago—that people were content with the beans they were getting. Some were content with home-baked beans; some with the common ready-baked brands.

Yet those contented people were eating beans scarcely once a week.

Then we told you about Van Camp's. We even gave away hundreds of thousands of cans to show you how good they are.

The result is, millions have learned—for the first time—how good baked beans can be. They have made Van Camp's almost a daily dish. They are using so many, that it is immensely hard to supply them.

But it isn't the beans alone. The goodness of those beans is largely due to our method of baking.

Van Camp's

BAKED WITH TOMATO SAUCE

PORK AND BEANS

When anyone says "Our beans are as good as Van Camp's," please buy them and try them. Serve them with Van Camp's. Then let your people say which kind they like best. It's a very easy thing to decide.

It is a very easy thing to claim good beans. But it is a very difficult thing to bake them.

We have spent 47 years in learning how to prepare such beans as Van Camp's.

Yet it means more than skill—more than facilities. It means a total disregard for expense.

We pay nearly nine times what we need pay for beans, and five times as much for tomato sauce.

Some beans, not half so good as Van Camp's, cost you the same as ours. Somebody makes more profit.

Some beans cost you a trifle less; yet the maker makes more, and the seller makes more, than can be made on Van Camp's. They make more on one can, but not more in the long run.

That's why you hear the claim sometimes, "These are just as good as Van Camp's."

The way to decide is to buy them. Serve one dish of the "Just as good" and one dish of Van Camp's.

You were accustomed to beans that were mushy and broken. We have given you beans that are nutty because they are whole.

We have baked them in live steam, so all beans were baked alike. They are evenly, yet unbroken.

We have baked them in ovens heated to 245 degrees, so the beans are made digestible. You have ceased to regard them as heavy food. They have ceased to ferment and form gas.

We told you—any, one of you—go back to the old ways now?

We have given you, too, a new idea of tomato sauce. But it costs us five times what other sauce costs to make.

You have eaten sauce from tomatoes picked green, and ripened in shipment. You found it was flat.

You have eaten sauce made of scraps from a canning factory. You found it was not rich.

We have shown you tomato sauce made from whole ripe tomatoes—ripened on the vines. Picked when the juice fairly sparkles.

You have found it to have a new savor—a sparkling zest which Nature alone can give.

And we have baked that tomato sauce into the beans. You have found that quite different from adding it afterwards.

These are the reasons why millions of homes are using Van Camp's beans now.

Then take a vote of your table. Let your people decide which kind of beans is best.

Van Camp's now command the largest sale in the world. They have not attained that sale unjustly.

Beans are Nature's choicest food when the best beans are rightly baked.

They are 23% nitrogenous—84% nutriment. They are far more nutritious, pound for pound, than meat.

They are a very cheap food—a food that all people like. And they are convenient. Every can in the house means a meal always ready.

That means a great deal in summer. Beans should be a daily dish, not an occasional.

So get the best beans—beans that your people like—beans that they never tire of. They will save you time, and work, and money.

If any one says that Van Camp's are not best, please try the others and see.

ADVICE WORTH LISTENING TO.

Generally it at Least Helps One to Make Up His Mind.

You may disregard advice, but listen to it.

Don't scoff at it, no matter who the person is that makes it.

Many a fool has helped a wise man.

Even the worst advice presents one side of a question.

An astute man said that he always wanted advice, not to follow it, but to help him make up his mind. If you once got this idea about it you will be much the gainer in the battle of life.

No one person can present all the points of view, and a person about to take an important step should be able to know what is all around the horizon.

Listen to everything everybody has to say, if you have the time; if not, always listen to anything that is presented strongly, whether or not it agrees with your opinion.

And above all things never scoff at the criticism, with its implied advice, of an enemy. There you get your weakest points exposed. If you are wise you will be thankful for the opportunity to strengthen them.

Test Case.

"I'm a 'beauty doctor,'" announced the stranger with the hand satchel full of cosmetics and massage machines. "Do you think I could get any practice around here?"

"You make ugly things pretty, don't you?" drawled the old farmer in the speckled shirt.

"That's my business, sir."

"Well, if you'll go down back of my barn you'll find an old slate-colored cow with one eye and one horn and wrinkles like canals all over her face. She's the ugliest cow in seven states and if you can make her pretty I'll agree that you're a 'beauty doctor,' and give you a dollar."

Wary.

"So you heard my speech?" said the orator.

"Yes," answered Farmer Cornstossel.

"And you enjoyed it?"

"Very much."

"And you agreed with my opinions?"

"Entirely."

"Then, of course, I can depend on your support."

"No. I've thought it all over, and I've concluded that as slick a talker as you are ain't to be trusted."—Washington Star.

Quite Likely.

"We thought," said the reporter, "you might care to say something about those charges against you."

"No," replied the crooked public official, "I believe that 'silence is golden.'"

"Well," replied the reporter, "perhaps the public might believe it's merely gilt in this case."—Philadelphia Press.

HOT WEATHER CONVINCES YOU

It makes you aware of the heat and some other things you have been insensible of during spring. The following experiences for instance are vividly suggested:

The air in your rooms on a sultry day is very oppressive. An electric fan would revive it and relieve your discomfort.

Ironing day in summer is exhausting—dangerous, in fact, to many women. An electric flatiron requires no fire and no changing of irons. Thousands of footsteps are saved. Your iron is always ready.

Illumination on hot evenings overheats the rooms, unless electric light is used. There is no flame. It does not exhaust the oxygen either.

Are these comforts expensive? No. They are economy itself, all things considered.

Then why do you not have them?

Sunday Night Luncheon

Sandwiches are always in order. Here's something of so fine a flavor that it will appeal to the most discriminating palate—Frank's Liver Sausage. Epicures pronounce it more delicate than the Paté de Foies Gras of the French.

It can be conveniently served either in sandwiches, or sliced thin for a cold dish. A happy thought for the picnic basket!

Remember to ask for Frank's Liver Sausage. It is one of 36 varieties of sausage made in a kitchen that fairly glistens white, it is so clean. The choicest materials and purely vegetable condiments are combined in these sausages—made as only Frank knows how.

BABY'S VOICE

Is the joy of the household, for without it no happiness can be complete. How sweet the picture of mother and babe! Angels smile at and commend the thoughts and aspirations of the mother, bending over the cradle. The ordeal through which the expectant mother must pass, however, is so full of danger and suffering that she looks forward to the hour when she shall feel the exquisite thrill of motherhood with indescribable dread and fear. Every woman should know that the danger, pain and horror of childbirth can be entirely avoided by the use of Mother's Friend, a scientific liniment for external use only, which toughens and renders pliable all the parts, and assists nature in its sublime work. By its aid thousands of women have passed this great crisis in perfect safety and without pain.

Moon Regarded as a Deity.

Among the early peoples of Mesopotamia all of the heavenly bodies were regarded as deities, but the moon, because of the variety of the shapes which it assumes, was the chief of them all. Special reverence was therefore paid it and some of the oldest and most important of the Babylonian temples, as at Ur and Uruk, were devoted to its worship. Thus the crescent, the symbol by which the moon god was represented, was supposed to have the power to avert evil, and then together with the star it formed the word for incantation.

WHAT THE KIDNEYS DO.

Their Unceasing Work Keeps Us Strong and Healthy.

All the blood in the body passes through the kidneys once every three minutes. The kidneys filter the blood. They work night and day. When healthy they remove about 500 grains of impure matter daily, when unhealthy some part of this impure matter is left in the blood. This brings on many diseases and symptoms—pain in the back, headache, nervousness, hot, dry skin, rheumatism, gout, gravel, disorders of the eyesight and hearing, dizziness, irregular heart, debility, weakness, dropsy, deposits in the urine, etc. But if you keep the filters right you will have no trouble with your kidneys.

Mrs. W. Johnson, of 127 Pearl St., Janesville, Wis., says:

"For a long time I had a severe pain in my back that must have been due to some disorder of the kidneys. It was nothing constantly and became so severe at times that I was almost prostrated. Numerous remedies that I tried, failed to help me and finally I began using Doan's Kidney Pills which I procured at The People's Drug Store. After using this remedy for a short time I found a complete cure, and the trouble has not returned."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents.

BELS DOWNFALL OF THE BELL.

Metal Tubes Will Supercede It, According to Clergyman.

"It will not be many years," says a St. Louis clergyman, "before bells for church use will be almost unknown. Even now, when a church desires something to answer the purpose of the bell, the trustees do not buy bells, but tubes, some made of bell metal, other of a composite of several metals. The metal tubes are hung in steeples and struck with a hammer. They give a clear, full note, just like a bell, only more resonant. They never crack with cold or heat, and what is a still greater recommendation, never get out of tune. There is a chime in the city with one or two bells so horribly out of tune that they set people's teeth on edge. Such discord in a chime of metal tubes would be unknown, and besides, the tone is so much more agreeable than that of the bell that any one who ever hears the two can not fail to prefer the tube. It sounds like a great organ pipe, so that when one of these chimes is played the impression is that of a huge organ far up in the sky."

Friday and the Southsayer. Two women who wished to make an appointment with a fortune teller who was pronounced "just splendid" by everybody who had patronized her, were advised by the seer to come on Friday.

"That is, if you are not superstitious about Friday," she said. "Most people are. They regard Friday as such an unlucky day that they won't even have their fortunes told them for fear they will hear something unlucky. That is why I advise you to come on that day. I will have plenty of time, and won't have to put your cases through with such a rush."

Sophy of Kravonia

by ANTHONY HOPE

Author of "The Prisoner of Zenda"

Copyright, 1905, Anthony Hope Hawkins

The question met with silence. The air of all three indicated that the matter was purely one for his majesty. The king sat a moment with a frown on his brow.

Across this silence came a loud voice from the next room—Lepage's voice: "Take care! Take care! You'll upset the towers, prince!"

The king started. He looked around at his companions. Then he struck a hand bell on the table before him. Lepage appeared.

"Lepage, whom did you address as 'prince' just now?"

"Count Alexis, sir."

"Why?"

"The count insisted."

"Don't do that again! It's absurd! Go away!"

A dull red patch Countess Ellenburg's cheeks. Lids hooded low over the eyes of Staufitz and of Stenbock. It was a very awkward little scene.

"Lepage, whom did you address as 'prince' just now?"

"The king's irritation led me to address him as 'prince' for the moment. What would the kindred of the exiled princess have said? The king turned to Countess Ellenburg and forced a smile.

"The question of reproach is one for you, countess," he said lightly. "And now about the princess—No, I mean I wanted to ask if my wishes have been communicated to the prince of Slavina."

"The prince has received them, sir. He read them in the presence of my messenger and requested leave to send his answer in writing, unless he might wait on your majesty."

"There are reasons why I had better not see him just now. Ask him to write, but very soon. The matter isn't one for delay." The king rose from his seat.

"Your majesty still wishes me to send for Baroness Dolbrava?"

"The king reflected for a moment and answered simply, "No."

His brief word broke up the conference. It had already lasted longer than usual and resuming Dr. Stenbock would have advised. The men went away with a smile, all of them, the king, Stenbock, Staufitz, Countess Ellenburg, each smiling according to the quality of each, their smiles answering to Max von Hollbrandt's shrug of the shoulders. There are things which bring men to what painful youth was taught to call the least common denominator. A horse race does it, a prize fight, a cricket match, a battle, too, in some sort. Equally efficacious very often, though it is to be recorded with reluctance, is a strong flirtation with no proper issue obviated.

The matter was grave, yet all the men laughed. The matter was grave, and Countess Ellenburg did not laugh. Was that what Staufitz called her views and her temperance? In part, no doubt. Besides, men will laugh at the side issues of the gravest affairs. It is not generally the case with women. Added again to this, perhaps Countess Ellenburg knew more or divined more. Among glancing diversities there was perhaps something, an atom of similarity between her and Sophy—not the something which refuses, but the something which complies half conditions with assent. The thousandth chance is to most men negligible. To most women it is no worse than the tenth. Their sense of mathematical odds is so sure and sometimes magnificently imperfect.

It had flashed across Countess Ellenburg's mind that perhaps Sophy, too, played for a big stake, or, rather, lived for it and so would die. The men had not the mind of that. To them the victures of woman's weakness.

We refer to that born to weak, nervous, suffering women known as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

Dr. John E. Pierce, of the Editorial Staff of the Medical Review, says:

lent irritation had its obvious end and its passing inconvenience. It might delay the prince's departure for awhile. It might make his marriage more entirely an affair of duty and of state. With this idea they smiled and shrugged. The whole business came under the head which in their thoughts and their confidential conversations they would style nonsense.

It was not so with the countess. Disconcerted by that episode of Lepage and young Alexis, more moved by the sudden appearance of Baroness Dolbrava as a factor in the game, she returned to prayer.

What now was the form and matter of her prayer? The form must go unformulated and the words uncollected. Yet she prayed so long that she must have succeeded in putting a good face on her petitions.

It is probable that she prayed for others as she prayed for herself. She prayed that the Prince of Slavina and the Princess Dolbrava might escape temptation.

or that if they fell—Again it was not for her to dictate to Heaven. Heaven had its ways of dealing with such sinners.

Yet through all her prayers must have echoed the words, "It's absurd!" She prayed again most likely against being suspected of wishing that the man who uttered them, her husband, might soon be dead.

The king died and the prince a slave to have—to the little hours of an unprofitable love! It was a fine vision and needed a vast deal of covering with the veil of prayer.

Chapter Nineteen

THE Prince of Slavina's answer to the intimation of his father's wishes was dutiful, courteous and discreetly diplomatic. The prince was much occupied with his duties and other occupations. He availed himself of Max von Hollbrandt's practiced pen. The guest was going to do his royal best this time.

He talked over the sense of the reply. Max then drafted it. The prince did no more than amend certain expressions which the young diplomatist had used. Max wrote that the prince cordially sympathized with the king's wishes; the prince amended to the effect that he thoroughly understood them. Max wrote that the prince was prepared cordially and energetically to cooperate in their realization; the prince preferred to be prepared to consider them in a benevolent spirit. Max suggested that two or three months' postponement of the suggested journey would not in itself be fatal; the prince insisted that such a delay was essential in order that negotiations might be set on foot to insure his being welcomed with due emprise. Max added that the later date would have an incidental advantage since it would obviate the necessity of the prince's interrupting the important labors on which he was engaged; the prince said instead that, in his judgment, it was essential in the interests of the kingdom that the task of training the artillery should not be interfered with by any other object, however well worthy of consideration that object might be.

In the result the draft as amended, though not less courteous or dutiful than Max's original, was noticeably more stiff. "Translate them both into the terse and abrupt speech of everyday life and one said, 'I'd rather not please,' while the other came at least very near to a blank 'I won't.' Max's was acquiescence coupled with a prayer for postponement. The prince's was assurance of respectful consideration.

Max was not hurt, but he felt a professional disapproval. The prince had said more and shown more of his mind than was needful. It was throwing more cards on the table than the rules of the game demanded.

"Mine would have done just as well," he complained to Marie Zerkovitch. "It might have been referred to his could have followed. As it is, he's wasted one or other of them. Very foolish since just now time's his main object." He did not mean saving time, but protracting it.

Marie did no more than toss her head peevishly. The author of the original draft persevered.

"Don't you think mine would have been much wiser to begin with?"

"I don't see much difference. There's little enough truth in either of them," she snapped.

Max looked at her with an amused and tolerant smile. He knew quite well what she meant. He shook his head at her with a humorous twinkle. "Oh, come, come, don't be exacting, madame! There's a very fair allowance of truth. Quite half the truth, I should think. He is really very anxious about the gunners."

Max spread out his hands, with a shrug. "And about what else?"

Marie spread out her hands, with a shrug. "And about what else?"

Marie spread out her hands, with a shrug. "And about what else?"

Marie spread out her hands, with a shrug. "And about what else?"

Marie spread out her hands, with a shrug. "And about what else?"

Marie spread out her hands, with a shrug. "And about what else?"

Max spread out his hands, with a shrug, but passed the question by. "No much truth, in fact, that it would have served amply for at least two letters," he remarked, returning to his own special point of complaint.

Marie might well amuse the easy-going, yet observant and curious young man. He loved to watch his fellow creatures under the stress of feelings from which he himself was free and found in the opportunities afforded him in this line the chief interest both of his life and of his profession.

But Marie had gradually risen to a high, nervous tension. She was no puritan. Puritans were not common in Kravonia nor had Paris grafted such a slip on to her nature. Had she thought as the men in the palace thought when they smiled, had she thought that and no more, it is scarcely likely that she would have thus disturbed herself. After all, such cases are generally treated as in some sense outside the common rules. Exceptional allowances are, in fact, whether properly or not, made for exceptional situations. Another feeling was in her mind, an obsession which had come almost wholly to possess her. The fateful foreboding which had attacked her from the first had now full dominion over her. Its rule was riveted more closely on her spirit day by day as day by day the prince and Sophy drew closer together. Even that Sophy had once saved his life could now no longer shake Marie's doubtful prepossession. Unusual and unlooked for things take color from the mind of the spectator. The strange train of events which had brought Sophy to Pradolok borrowed ominous shadows from a nervous, apprehensive temperament.

No such gloom brooded over Sophy. She gave herself up to the hour—the past forgotten, the future never thought of. It was the great time of her life. Her feelings, while not less spontaneous and fresh, were more mature, and more fully satisfied than when Casimir de Savores poured his love at her feet. A cry of happiness almost broken runs through her early recollections of these days. There was little leisure for diary or letters.

Winter was melting into spring, snow dwelt only on the hillsides, Lake Taill was unbound and sparkled in the sun. The days grew longer, yet were far too short. To ride with him to Volensk, to hear the cheers, to see the love they bore him, to watch him at work, to seem to share the labor and the love—then to shake off the kindly clinging friends and take to a mountain path or wander, the reins on the horse's neck, by the margin of the lake and come home through the late dusk, talking even, silent often, always together in thought as in bodily presence—was not this enough? "If I had to die in a month I should owe life a tremendous debt already." That is her own summing up. It is pleasant to remember.

It would be

✻ FORTY YEARS AGO ✻

Janesville Daily Gazette, June 10, 1868.—(Gone Out)—We learn that during the great rain storm of yesterday, the bridge over Turtle Creek at Turleville, was washed away. This bridge was but recently built and at a cost of some $2,000 and seems to have been at quite an unlucky place for bridges, as several have been washed away from this place lately.

Affectionate.—A man and wife named Johnson, got muddled drunk this forenoon, and engaging in a fight with a man named Johnson, who was in the park near Main street, finally resorted to throwing stones. The exhibition from being disgraceful and ludicrous got serious and the interesting pair were locked up in jail.

Effects of the Storm.—Wherever the storm of Sunday night reached it is pronounced the severest ever known in this county. Great damage was done to the railroads and crops and buildings suffered more or less severely. The Monroe branch of the Milwaukee and Pauline du Chien railroad was damaged by the moving of a tree to this side of Monroe, by washing of the embankments at Sugar river, and by a serious displacement of the track at Janesville. This damage will be repaired at once. On the Madison branch of the C. & N. W. the track was submerged and the trains delayed. On the main line of the M. & P. du C. E. between the Wisconsin river and Prairie du Chien, the track in some places was badly washed. At Clinton Lighter, struck the public hall and a telegraph pole. At Sharon, Wis. a telegraph house was struck and the plastering torn off, but no one was injured; at Hollet a house was struck and a girl 14 years of age instantly killed, and a man severely injured. There are other accidents and incidents of the storm of which we have not learned.

The Weather.—Sunday the thermometer stood at ninety degrees, the hot day being succeeded at night by a terrific thunder storm. Monday, thermometer 81 degrees, with a heavy shower in the afternoon the air being cooled thereby. Today the thermometer was at 90 in the forenoon but in the afternoon it got colder and fell to 81.

EXCESSIVE DRINKING

Excessive or continued use of alcoholic beverages always results in a diseased condition of the nervous system.
The drinking man is often heard to say, "I can stop with my own free will and when I wish," but the poor fellow is now devoid of the power to act at the proper time and in the right way.
It's too late, the craving has secured a firm hold and because of the diseased nervous system he has not the ability for sustained effort. The result we all know.

Drunkness is no longer considered a crime; eminent scientists and physicians have agreed that it is a disease and must be treated as such.
The home treatment that has been used for a number of years, and is highly successful, is Orrine. It is sold under a positive guarantee that if it does not effect a cure your money will be refunded.

Orrine is in two forms. When desired to give secretly, purchase Orrine No. 1, and if the patient will voluntarily take the treatment, Orrine No. 2 should be given. The guarantee is the same in either case. Orrine costs but $1.00 per box. Mailed in plain sealed wrapper on receipt of price. Write for free treatise on "Drunkness" mailed in sealed envelope by The Orrine Co., Washington, D. C., and in this city by People's Drug Co. and King's Pharmacy.

EAST CENTER.
East Center, June 10.—A message was received by the friends of Mr. and Mrs. Will Richards of Kansas, telling them that their baby girl, Elizabeth, aged three years, was drowned. The little one had picked some flowers in the yard and wandered over towards the elms, finding a large stone and heard which covered it. Looking in she lost her balance and before she could be rescued was drowned. Heroic efforts were made by her father to save the child and he was nearly overcome by the gases in the elms. Their many friends here extend their profound sympathy.

The friends of La Verne Crail and Gladys Hawk extend to them their heartfelt congratulations upon receiving their diplomas. Both the young people expect to attend high school next year.
